New Reyco Granning Business Unit to Serve Electric Vehicle Market

Mt. Vernon, MO – Today Reyco Granning, LLC announced the launch of RG evs, Reyco Granning Electric Vehicle Solutions business unit.

“RG evs cements our commitment to the future of heavy vehicle propulsion.” said John Stuart, President. “We want the industry to know that we already have solutions that are compatible with e-axes and available today for the heavy EV space. We’re not just peddling CAD renderings and concepts.”

Reyco Granning offers the broadest suspension portfolio for on-highway heavy vehicles in the world. Products include drive, auxiliary, and steer axle suspensions as well as fully integrated modules with sub-frame, wheel-ends, steering, and drive train.

The company recently launched a new air suspension supply and control module called AirMaster. The product utilizes an electronic air compressor and proprietary programming to dramatically reduce parasitic power consumption; ideal for the EV market or for any vehicle without an engine-mounted compressor.

“Reyco Granning has been focused on heavy vehicle suspension technology for nearly 90 years. We don’t have an automotive division to distract us; we don’t sell bumpers or fifth-wheel couplings. We are a pure suspension technology company.” said Scott Ames, Business Development.

Reyco Granning’s extensive IFS product range includes applications for GAWR’s from 9,000 to 24,000 lb. and in mid-2019 the company will launch the ComfortMaster IFS with industry first Nitrogen-strut architecture. In the coming months the company promises further developments and announcements from RG evs.
